

The AJC Achieves High-Quality, Affordable CCTV solution with i3 International

MISSION

When the American Jewish Committee moved forward with their plan to update their entire 15-year-old analogue security camera system in their eight story midtown Manhattan Headquarters, their top priorities were image quality and price. They were looking to outfit their entire building with a new IP Mega-Pixel system which included mega-pixel cameras, NVR servers and security software. For an organization such as the AJC that takes their security very seriously, it was imperative that they select the right equipment that provided the high quality security solutions they needed.

SOLUTION

After speaking with and reviewing the equipment packages and pricing from five separate Security Camera System providers, the AJC chose i3 International as their Security equipment provider. "With i3 we got better quality equipment for the same price"; says Mitchell Stein Director of Security for the AJC. Stein continues, "The transition from our old analogue system to the new IP one was seamless and we couldn't be happier with the quality of the video or the customer support we've received from i3."

RESULT

According to Mr. Stein, their new security camera system from i3 with their high resolution cameras, have made their investigations easier and became an integral asset when working with local law enforcement to help identify individuals from their video footage. As a result, i3 International's system and customer care are proud and honored to continue to support the AJC in their safety and security efforts.

“ The transition from our old analogue system to the new IP one was seamless and we couldn't be happier with the quality of the video or the customer support we've received from i3. ”

